

INSTITUTIONAL TRAINING

Professional short courses that CTCP delivers are designed to provide professionals with the tools to effectively address critical domestic and international criminal issues.

The training programs are specialized programs attractive to professionals from law enforcement agencies and the private sector including police, prosecution services, customs, anti-corruption, immigration, banking, finance, accounting and other institutions from Australia, the Asia-Pacific region and beyond.

The Centre has delivered tailored professional short courses in all ASEAN countries as well as China and Hong Kong. Individual CTCP staff have delivered programs in over 25 countries.

Professional Short courses can be tailored to individual training needs.

THE UNIVERSITY OF WOLLONGONG

Established in 1951, the University of Wollongong (UOW) has been recognised by Federal and State Governments and by independent analysts as being at the pinnacle of higher education in Australia.

UOW is one of only two universities nationwide to achieve top-tier rankings in every discipline category of the Australian Government's Learning and Teaching Performance Fund for 2008.

UOW is ranked in the Top 500 world universities by the Shanghai Jiao Tong Academic Ranking of World Universities 2006.

The 2008 Good Universities Guide reaffirms UOW's long standing position as one of the country's leading research institutions and a place where students are provided with a five-star educational experience and a five-star chance of gaining a job with a top salary at the end of their degree.

CENTRE FOR TRANSNATIONAL CRIME PREVENTION

A GLOBAL CENTRE OF EXCELLENCE

“Securing our World Through Research and Education”

THE CENTRE FOR TRANSNATIONAL CRIME PREVENTION

Transnational crime is increasingly sophisticated and requires a sophisticated response – one that employs new knowledge, skills, technologies and operational mandates. The Centre for Transnational Crime Prevention (CTCP), Faculty of Law was established in 2000 by the University of Wollongong to tackle the ever-progressive threat of transborder crime. The research and teaching Centre focuses on responses to organised criminal activities that impact on regional and global security, including narcotics production, trafficking of firearms and people, smuggling, terrorism, fraud & money laundering, corruption, cybercrime, paedophile activity, natural resources poaching, illegal shipment of hazardous waste and identity theft. The Centre is founded on the precept that the jurisdictional, operational, legal and political complexities of countering transnational crime demand a unique, multi disciplinary response.

"CTCP staff with some of the Australian and international students undertaking the Master of Transnational Crime Prevention. Autumn Session, 2007"

Study at CTCP gives you the opportunity to undertake a multi disciplinary education from key University stakeholders including the Faculties of Law, Commerce, Arts and Informatics, it also provides for a cross cultural perspective on transborder crimes. Students exchange experiences and develop international networks with colleagues and academic staff from a wide cross section of nationalities and professions.
